Celebrating our Centenary
29 April 2017
INFERRING is our focus reading comprehension strategy at present. Lots of young readers find this a difficult skill to master, but it is a very important part of confident, competent reading.

Readers develop deeper understandings of texts when they 'read between the lines' to draw their own conclusions, by using prior knowledge. Inferring is the skill of being able to understand from clues and prior knowledge, more than the words tell us.

Readers create their own unique meaning of the text. As they read, these understandings may be revised as they come to new information that confirms or adjusts their thinking.

Making Inferences

Readers can understand more about a story and its characters if they look for clues in what the characters do and say.

Inferring

Inferring is being able to 'read between the lines', when the author implies something but doesn't explicitly state it. You need to use the clues in the text and your own prior knowledge to help you understand.

Next Wednesday I will repeat the same session so that more parents are able to access it.

In week 6 I’ll talk about some other aspects of the program. Once every three weeks for half an hour and you’ll be as on the ball with SSP as your children are.

Cheers for now,

Mrs D
